GUCA Contractor Corrects Erosion Problem at Georgia State Park

Forest Park, GA - GUCA Contractor member Douglas Electrical & Plumbing, Inc. has extended a helping hand to the Little Ocmulgee State Park, located in Helena, Georgia to stop the formation of huge gullies in the beach that were washing the sand away right after rainfall. To combat this problem, Douglas Electrical and Plumbing rerouted the water coming off the parking lot to an underground basin which in turn would put the water into the lake.

Douglas Electrical and Plumbing, Inc. not only volunteered their time and expertise to this project but also donated all the materials to put in the underground basin at the beach area. After quoting Friends of Little Ocmulgee State Park a total cost of zero dollars, Douglas Electrical and Plumbing, Inc. arrived bright and early on Friday, April 16th to perform and complete the three day project. The project will not only stop the unsightly gullies from forming in the sand, it will also save the park money from having to keep purchasing sand and committing their limited manpower to fixing and maintaining the previous reoccurring problem. With the help and expertise of Douglas Electrical & Plumbing, Inc. now this state park no longer has to worry about this problem and exhausting delicate resources.

Douglas Electrical & Plumbing, Inc. has committed to continue to assist Friends of Little Ocmulgee State Park, by donating up to 75 tons of asphalt needed to resurface a street inside the park leading to the camp cabins.
